

Drayton Valley teacher eyes Boston run

Rick Watrich pounds the pavement.

By Lorne Christensen

Running can become addictive. Just ask Rick Watrich.

He runs between 40 and 65 miles a week and is hoping some day to qualify for the Boston marathon.

But before Watrich can challenge the streets of Boston he must first better his own time through practice on the roads around Drayton Valley.

He says his goal by the end of the year is to run the 26-mile marathon in under three hours. He plans to "race" in two marathons during the year, on June 16 in Winnipeg at the Canadian national championships, and then another marathon sometime in the fall.

In addition to running the marathon Watrich is also involved in "a lot of 10-kilometre" races around the province.

He recently competed in a 10-kilometre race in Edmonton and finished in 40 minutes, 39 seconds.

He adds that by the end of the summer he wants to be under 38 minutes in the 10 k.

"It's fun, you meet a lot of neat people, everybody is a winner," Watrich explains.

Watrich, who has been teaching at Frank Maddock for seven years, uses his desire for running in many ways.

"One of the worst things with teaching is stress," he points out in saying running is a great way to relieve stress, besides the fitness aspect.

Maintaining his level of fitness is one reason why the University of Alberta graduate runs when he gets a chance.

"My heart rate is about 48 and the average is 72," Watrich said, "you exercise your heart."

But fitness is not the only thing he has applied his knowledge of running to. He also coaches the high school track team and would like to start a local running club.

"I'd also like to organize a three- or 10-kilometre run in town."

The 38-year-old has been running seriously for about three years and points out running is one of the easiest things to do.

"A good pair of shoes is all you need," he adds. "I like running for the fact it is not that time-consuming."

Watrich says running also gives him a lot of direction in addition to a good positive attitude and feeling healthy.

But running can also be painful he points out. In a marathon in Richmond, British Columbia last year Watrich got "greedy" and he "paid for it in the end."

"If there was an ambulance (in the last few miles) I would have quit," he laughed.

"I'd like to try Richmond again and run it wiser," he added.

"I feel good doing it, it doesn't take a lot out of my life."

"But tomorrow somebody might run me over," Watrich grinned.

Watrich reflected his attitude about running in an old saying.

"Running won't add years to your life, but you'll enjoy your years."

Swimming pool

Town okays beer and wine

Beer and wine will be allowed at the Park Valley Swimming Pool in Drayton Valley.

Town council decided last week that groups renting the facility would be allowed to take beer and wine along with their snacks into the viewing area at the pool.

According to a letter from pool manager Charlene Jenkins, beer and wine had been allowed on three occasions as part of an experiment and things were relatively easy to control. Council voted 5-2 to allow beer and wine at the pool.

Councillor Tom McGee, in speaking for the motion stated, "If we don't allow liquor, rentals will be affected."

McGee said that he had attended a function at the pool where wine was served and the staff were aware of everything.

Councillor Bill Panice questioned whether the staff were all 18. He was assured that qualified staff would be on duty when liquor was present.

Councillor Clare Carefoot expressed concern over bottles being broken and the glass ending up in the pool. Her concerns were not addressed.

The fireworks display was quite spectacular on Friday night with the firemen selling them off to open the Evergreen Rodeo. Despite the overcast skies the display went well with over $3,000 worth of fireworks being shot off into the sky above Drayton Valley.

Lunch park almost done

A lunch and leisure park behind the Beehive Workshop is nearing completion.

According to Ron Szala, spokesman for the workshop, a small area behind the shop has been leased from the town for 20 years. The area will have six picnic benches on the grass which is being put in now.

About $10,000 has been raised towards the project, he said. Money coming from auctions and donations.

Szala said the park is open to everyone.

The space was created because the staff and clients at the Beehive "wanted someplace to go" for lunch and coffee breaks when the weather is good, he commented.

Hundreds view rodeo parade

The weatherman cooperated last Saturday as hundreds of Drayton Valley and area residents turned out for the Evergreen rodeo parade.

The parade featured everything from a squad of all-terrain vehicle riders to a travelling orchestra.

There were eight categories of winners in the parade.

Best agricultural entry was won by the West

Valley 4-H, with Spruce Valley 4-H taking second.

For the equestrian category, Serenas took top honors with Moonlight Trail winning second.

The Legion had the best float for the club category, the Lions coming in behind them.

The Shangri-La Lodge won for the best commercial float while the Westwinds Motor Inn had second place.

For the industrial entry, Mobil Oil brought in the best float with D.V. Meter taking second.

The band from Frank Maddock High School won first place in the band category.

The Beehive Workshop had the best novelty entry, followed by the Boy Scout sponsored by D.V. Meter.

In newly-created bicycle category, Barbara Lee had first place, Devin Krowchuk took second, and Annette Prentice came in third.

Several other events held during rodeo weekend had to put up with wind and rain.

Opinions

Town council replaces chocolate bars with booze

It's impossible to figure Drayton Valley Town Council's thinking.

About six weeks ago they had a chocolate bar machine removed from the Park Valley swimming pool. The removal of that machine, for whatever reason, may have led to Dennis Woolsey's sudden departure as recreation director.

Now, council in their wisdom, are going to allow beer and wine at the pool by groups renting the facility.

A swimming pool has always been looked upon as a youth and family oriented facility. But now it will be just another watering hole in Drayton Valley.

There's places in Drayton Valley where beer and wine can be served. One of them is certainly not the swimming pool, whether it's during public or private time.

We have a bar at the golf course where mostly adults are involved. The curling rink has a bar that undoubtedly would like better controls as many curlers take drinks onto the ice, apparently not caring for the damage one spilled drink can do. We accept beer and wine at these sports establishments. Not the swimming pool. The next thing you know they will be serving beer at hockey games.

Councillor Tom McGee, speaking in favor of the idea, told council last week that if beer and wine weren't allowed by the groups rentals would be affected.

Isn't that just too bad.

Another councillor remarked before passing the act that people couldn't get drunk during an hour rental. It's obvious the councillors don't know as much as they should about the swimming pool. Rentals, for example on Saturdays, go from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight.

That's lots of time to get drunk. Then there's always the hot tub, which could have immediate effects on a heavy drinker. And who's to say the rental group hadn't been drinking before coming to the swimming pool?

Councillor Clare Carefoot mentioned the possibility of broken glass making its way into the pool. That could cause serious injury, not to mention major mechanical problems. Maybe even shut down the pool which would cost the town money.

But, council paid little attention to Carefoot's concern.

They simply okayed the drinking of beer and wine at the swimming pool by rental groups, with no strings attached.

Drinking may be accepted at the Elks, Legion, hotels, golf course and curling rink, but the swimming pool should be off limits. Can't anyone enjoy a swim without people drinking?

It's obvious Drayton Valley Town Council should've looked before they leaped into this issue.

Commendation to grad party organizers

The graduating class at Frank Maddock High School and the Drayton Valley Kinsmen are to be commended for organizing the grad bush party.

While some folks say this only accepts drinking (that is going to happen anyway), at least mom and dad can sleep at night knowing their son or daughter is at a party where they don't have to worry about their safety.

Parent support is still needed to help with transportation for any grads who want to leave the party and go home. If you can help, call Alex Bleis or John Mulligan.

A major event will take place in Drayton Valley the weekend of June 28-30.

About 1,200 former Frank Maddock High School students will be arriving for their 25th reunion.

Organizers anticipate that between

Editor's Notes

$35,000 and $40,000 will be left behind by the former FMHS students.

One area where help is needed is providing items for a registration kit. If any business has pens, pencils, key chains, matches, etc., give me a call at 542-5380. Any donations would be greatly appreciated.

Lorne Christensen and Neil Speers played the 'back 9' at the Lindale golf course last week.

If you're a golfer, you are undoubtedly wondering where the back 9 is, as it's a nine hole course.

But from comments the two made on their return to The Western Review, we got the impression they played in the bush and didn't see much of the fairway. On top of that, Speers lost seven balls.

It will be the last time Christensen shares his clubs and balls with anyone.

Lyne Argent, Vicki Oster and Lois Dille have joined the staff at The Western Review.

Argent and Oster are working in the front office and Dille is our new truck driver. A 'big' welcome to all three.

Lines on a number of 'major' roadways were missed when the town of Drayton Valley did line-painting last month. Councillor Howard Olsen says there just wasn't enough money.

Hops to corner market

Baumann Resources open new waste water plant

By Lorne Christensen

After just more than a week in business Baumann Resources Disposal Company Limited is thinking about expanding.

The company just opened a waste water disposal plant near Pigeon Lake recently and are hoping they can "corner" the market in waste water disposal.

The disposal company was started by Kevin Baumann, who also owns Baumann Trucking, and is looking at possible other sites for another plant. He said that so far they have done it "on their own" but they are also arranging for a small amount of financing.

This plant, just north of Pigeon Lake, is to serve the Drayton Valley area and more specifically the smaller oil companies.

"Most of the bigger oil companies have their own (disposal plants). The main reason for this one is to cater to the small guys who don't have one," Baumann pointed out in adding that it also helps to keep his company's trucks busy.

His company's eight trucks had kept busy by hauling the waste water to a plant near Hobbema, before the new plant opened.

But the new plant was a long time in coming. After seven months of paperwork with the ERCB it took another three to four months of paperwork to buy the plant from Blue Sky Oil and Gas.

But now Baumann is concentrating on getting his plant operating to full capacity. Presently six oil companies dispose of their waste water through his plant, and he expects two or three more to join in June.

The plant is pumping 1,500 barrels of waste water daily now but it has a capacity to pump 4,000 barrels a day.

Currently the plant is only being run during the daytime but it has been equipped to run constantly if the demand requires it.

The waste water is "re-injected" into a non-producing field, Baumann explained. It is pumped back into the well by a five plunger pump and it takes between 600 and 600 pounds of pressure to pump two barrels per minute.

Baumann said the maximum capacity of the pump is around three and a half barrels a minute with the maximum pressure allowed of 1,250 pounds, as set by the ERCB.

The water is trucked into the plant and put into tanks where the "garbage settles." Then the water is forced into the 1,100 metre well by the vacuum pump.

The salty or acidic water has to be disposed of in an ERCB approved way. Baumann pointed out that by offering this ERCB approved service they are helping out environmentally. In the past some companies just dumped the water on the road because there were no close disposal plants.

Baumann explained that the water must be pumped into a non-productive field so it doesn't affect the flow of oil of a producing field. He added that some of the bigger oil companies use the waste water to force more oil to the surface in producing wells.

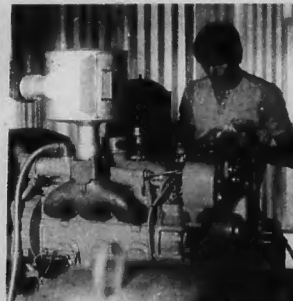

But because some of the smaller oil companies don't have their own plants Baumann is hoping to "capture" a large part of the market.

He points out that the nearest disposal plant with the same capacity is near Hobbema. A smaller disposal plant is located just outside of Drayton Valley but it can only dispose of 200 to 300 barrels a day.

"It's more economical to haul with us than to send it to Hobbema," Baumann says.

Kevin Baumann stands at the well head of his disposal plant near Pigeon Lake.

Kevin Baumann works on the disposal plant motor.

Students helping with weekend grad party

By Neil Speers

Plans are well underway towards having a safe grad party this weekend for students at Frank Maddock High School in Drayton Valley.

Preparations for the party, styled after the DUTA program, are "going fine," according to Colleen Moroz, spokesman for the grads.

The only aspect of the party the grads are not handling is the transportation, which is being supplied by the Kinsmen Club.

The students have rented a sound system and a generator to power it on the party site. The site has been provided by parents of one of the grads on the condition no students drive to the party.

Moroz said some of the graduates at first felt holding the party this way is somewhat a "pansy" way to do it, but "now, they're starting to accept it."

Moroz said the only way onto the buses to the party site is with tickets which the graduates are selling. Each grad has three tickets to sell, and they are "going to quit selling them on Thursday," she said, explaining they have to let the Kinsmen know so proper transportation can be arranged.

"I'm glad we've got their (the Kinsmen's) help," Moroz said.

Alex Blais, speaking for the Kinsmen, said "we have everything organized from our end."

There will be two buses running back and forth from the school to the party site, from 7 to 9 p.m., he commented.

Blais stressed the organization of the party is totally up to the students. The Kinsmen are only providing transportation to and from the party.

About a kilometre or so from the party, the Kinsmen will set up a "command post" where several drivers with cars will be waiting to take grads home when they feel like leaving the party.

Their major concern is not having anyone drive once they have been drinking.

The Kinsmen will also be there to keep unwanted guests from crashing the party. In past years, graduation parties in Drayton Valley have become notorious because of non-graduates breaking the party up and causing much destruction.

Alan Day, principal of Frank Maddock High School, said the "school cannot condone" any party where students may drink because of the past occurrences.

Although he did say, "If you're going to party anyway, this is a good way to handle it. And, it is a responsible approach."

These sentiments were echoed by Cpl. Grant Gilder of the Parkland County Police.

"It sounds like the way they have it set up will eliminate most of the problems," said Gilder.

He said the County Police will not be bothering much with the party, but will "definitely have patrols in the area."

A spokesman for the Drayton Valley RCMP said they are aware of the party and will be conducting patrols, much like the County Police.

The local distributor for Pepsi and 7-Up will be supplying 700 drink servings of pop for the students who do not wish to consume alcohol.

County study

Initial report in two weeks time

The first portion of the much talked about Drayton Valley area municipal feasibility study is expected within two weeks.

Ian Wight, manager of the policy and research section of the provincial government's Municipal Affairs branch, is busy drafting the school system's impact report. This will go out to school systems and municipalities before the end of June for their comment.

A second report dealing with municipal services could be ready by mid-July. This also will go to municipalities for their comments.

All of the comments will be included in the final draft which could go to the minister by the end of August.

The study, which started in February, is expected to play a major role in the formation of a new county.

Wight, who has been hampered with a shortage of staff due to an unexpected resignation, hopes a public document will be ready by the end of summer.

Wight said he found it difficult to nail down any specific dates. However he said, "This is the major project on my plate."

Dates needed

Starting in July The Western Review will publish a handy full page featuring the month's major events.

Clubs, organizations, teams and facility operators are asked to phone in or drop off their event dates to The Western Review (542-5380).

The July calendar of events will be published in the Wednesday, June 26 issue. The deadline for events is June 21.

This feature will continue every month.

When you send in or bring in your dates identify the event, time and place and include a phone number where people can call for more information.

Disappointed

Dear Editor,

I was bitterly disappointed in the first issue of the Poet's Corner. I had been looking forward to reading it until my friends pointed it out to me, and having read the awful verse about growing old has changed my mind.

Who wrote this, or is he or she ashamed to sign their own name?

I think instead of downgrading old age we in the town of Drayton Valley should be trying to uplift older people's spirits. And anyway, growing old is the way God planned life for us, and we should all learn to grow old gracefully.

Old age can be beautiful.

It's a state of mind and heart,

It's all in how you look at life

And how you got your start.

If you think young, and watch your health,

No matter what your age,

You'll always look and feel the same

In life at any stage.

— Betty Bouck

Looking forward to a change for the better in the Poet's Corner.

Yours truly,

Betty J. Bouck

County backer

Dear Editor,

In regards to forming a new county, you have my full support.

But, I doubt it will work. I am 74 years old and as long as I can recall the west has supported the east, even in our local propane sales.

Yours truly,

M. B. Allen

Adds support

Dear Editor,

In my opinion we should have a County of Drayton Valley.

This would help centralize the oilfield part of the present county and give the residents out here a fairer representation than is now possible.

Thank you,

Robert Allen

Improvements underway

Day appointed new principal

By Neil Speers
Alan Day is no longer the acting principal at Frank Maddock High School.

On June 4 the school board voted to install Day as the principal of the Drayton Valley school for next year. Day has been in the acting capacity since April 1, after former principal Richie Woods passed away.

Day has been the vice-principal at the school since 1974 and has been at Frank Maddock for the last 16 years.

He said just being the principal is a full-time job, which can be like "25 hours a day."

However, Day said he will teach a senior math course.

"I can't see removing myself entirely," Day said, explaining he feels the need to stay in contact with the students.

Day has been at the high school ever since he graduated from the University of Alberta. Since arriving at the school improvements have been made, such as in the shop and beauty culture classes, for which he and Woods had gone to employers around town to find out what they needed in new employees. Day said he wants to continue to improve the school.

The curriculum is already one area he is working on, to make it stronger.

A survey has gone out to parents in the area to see how they feel about the school, Day said, adding he hopes to survey the Grade 12s before the end of June as well.

Among other projects he wants to undertake include more contact with the junior high and with universities which, he feels is important.

Career preparation and life preparation are other areas he said will be looked at.

These are "something we have to work more on," he stressed.

Council News

Town lots

Council decided last week to provide real estate firms with the opportunity of selling town-owned lots at a commission rate of five per cent. Mayor Bob Mayhew said that several prospects had been steered away from these lots in the past and he hoped that this latest decision would change all that.

Nuisance properties

After sending letters to two property owners regarding the condition of their lots, the town decided last week to authorize staff to do the work and have any costs added to the owners' taxes.

Old pool building

Pending the completion of a feasibility study, the town will file all requests for the old swimming pool building. It is not known when the feasibility study will be completed.

Pool deficiencies

Council was informed last week that meetings are being held with Camrec over problems at the new Park Valley indoor swimming pool.

Mapping Drayton Valley keeps surveyors busy

The town of Drayton Valley is beginning to measure up.

For the next three months you may notice two men measuring the streets or digging up water and gas lines in back alleys.

Don't be alarmed, they are just surveyors.

Richard Gore and Terry Clifford from Butler Krebs, Lewis and Associates of Edmonton are working for the town.

Their job is to map all the municipal utilities, streets and alleys in town. Gore is a surveying technologist with 19 years of experience while Clifford is a survey technician with five years experience.

The two, who are staying at Violet Grove, will also be digging up property bars in some of the lawns around town.

Firehall a priority but other things come first

A feasibility study will likely be done before any action is taken to improve the fire hall situation in Drayton Valley.

Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson, in a Western Review front page article last week, exposed the crowded conditions which currently hamper the volunteers in their work.

Councillor Howard Olsen, who is aware of the volunteers' concerns, says "We need to look at a feasibility study."

But, any work is a matter of dollars.

"We don't have the money and we don't want to commit the next council by making a major decision now," says Olsen.

Fuson has several possible sites in mind for a new fire hall while Olsen says expansion of the present hall might be possible. Two-and-a-half years ago some consideration was given to knocking out the west wall.

Despite the exposure of the problems facing the fire department Olsen says it's certainly a priority for the town but, other things come first. Two of the 'other' priority items are water and sewer and street repairs.

Olsen, who chairs the town's transportation

Blades not out of action

The Drayton Valley junior 'B' Blades will ice a team next season. While he wasn't present at last week's Central Alberta Junior Hockey League meeting, Blades' president Les Sinclair says things are in order.

Sinclair, who was upset with an editorial in last week's paper, says he has given local playing dates to the league and is just waiting for the return of a schedule.

But, more importantly, the Blades need executive help.

A meeting is planned later this month. Anyone interested in helping the club is asked to attend. If you're interested in helping the local club but can't attend the meeting, call Sinclair at 542-2767 (home) or 542-4041 (work).

Vowk sets records

Lisa Vowk, from St. Anthony's school, came away from the zone track meet in Spruce Grove on the weekend with two county records.

Vowk threw 24.55 metres in the bantam girls javelin and jumped 4.2 metres in the long jump to set the new marks and capture first in both events.

She also took fourth in the 400-metre race and the 100-metre race on her way to tying for the outstanding bantam girl athlete award.

Several other athletes from St. Anthony also did well in their events. Tracey Uzelman took a first in the midget girls javelin, placed second in the discus and fourth in the shot put.

Troy Johnsson won the 400-metre junior boys race in addition to taking second in the 1,500-metre and fourth in the high jump.

Scott Kynoch took a second in the junior boys long jump while Terri Kwiatkowski took third in the bantam girls javelin. Cindy Winger grabbed fourth in the bantam girls 1,500-metre event with Caroline Fulkert taking a third in the bantam girls 200 metres.

St. Anthony's relay teams also did quite well. The bantam boys taking fourth, the midget girls third and the bantam girls anchored by Lisa Vowk with a second.

The athletes do not advance on from this meet but can go on to try out for the summer games in Ft. McMurray if they want.

Johner takes first

Duane Johner from Mayerthorpe guided his chuckwagon rig to first place at the Evergreen Rodeo on the weekend.

Johner's win was marred by an accident in one of the races on Sunday when Bob Calihoo was thrown from his wagon. Calihoo received only minor injuries in the accident and was released from hospital the same day.

Johner's combined time of 139.84 seconds over the two races was good enough to take first.

Louis Johner took second with a combined time of 148.70 and Cliff Cunningham took third with a 144.01 time.

In the carts event the winner was Chuck Johner with a time of 132.21. Clarence Sailer took second with his time of 134.32 and Angus Calihoo took third with a time of 135.18.

Buck Mountain fishing derby

O'Connor wins Mercury for hooking pike

Pat O'Connor of Westeros caught the biggest fish during the 16th annual Buck Mountain fishing derby held on the weekend at Buck Lake.

O'Connor hooked an 11-pound pike to take first place in that category which included a $700 Mercury outboard motor.

Al Kerestes of Edmonton had to settle for second place in the pike category with his 10-pound catch. Third place went to Paul Kracko of Vegreville with an eight-pound, 4 1/4-ounce pike.

Dennis and Linda Beisel of Drayton Valley, were big winners in the perch category.

The husband and wife team, with back-to-back catches, took the top two spots in the perch competition.

Husband Dennis hooked his one-pound, 6 1/2-ounce perch with his wife Linda following up with a catch of one pound, 6 1/8 ounces. First place was worth $150 and a trophy with second place paying $100.

Lorne Knapp, also of Drayton Valley, took third place with a perch weighing in at one pound, 4 1/4 ounces.

Danny Nicolls of Alder Flats took top spot in the walleye category with his catch of five pounds, 4 3/8 ounces. Derek Hagen of Edmonton was second with his three-pound, six-ounce walleye and Wetaskiwin's Troy Colwell was third with a catch of three pounds, 4 1/4 ounces.

One of the most excited winners was Stacy Knapp of Drayton Valley who took first in junior perch with a catch that weighed 19 ounces. Lynn Wagner of Red Deer was second with a 17 1/4-ounce perch.

Winners of the daily $50 prize draws from the entries, sponsored by Gunnar Hanson Construction of Breton, went to Garman Weber of Wetaskiwin, Les Matthes of Calgary and R. Lukwinski of Red Deer.

Bob Micku of West County Leisure in Buck Lake presented the Mercury outboard motor to O'Connor.

The Outdoor Store in Drayton Valley presented the merchandise prizes in the pike event. These included a fisherman's dream box full of hooks, a Minn Kota 18-electric fishing motor, Linda and Dennis Beisel of Drayton Valley were the big winners in the perch category at last weekend's 16th annual Buck Mountain fishing derby on Buck Lake. Husband Dennis won the event with a one pound, 6 1/2-ounce catch with wife Linda coming back on the next hook, with her second place one pound, 6 1/8-ounce perch.

The organizers, the Breton and District Fish and Game Association report 850 entries, which is down about 150 from the previous year. Bad weather was blamed for the poor attendance.

Organizers are also looking to holding the event the second weekend in June next year.

Spruce Grove blank Ceasars

Defending league champion Spruce Grove squad blanked hometown Ceasars 3-0 in soccer action Sunday.

Spruce Grove increased their record to four wins and no losses, good enough for first place while the Ceasars dropped to fourth with their two-win-one-loss mark.

The Ceasars just "stood around and watched them," according to goalie Simon Kelly.

"We had no real-threatening shots on goal, we had good pressure but our finishing was just terrible," Kelly said.

"This loss shows some of the guys we have to work a little harder," Kelly pointed out.

Kelly added that the team is more fit than ever and the coach, Blake Little, has been "doing an excellent job."

Ceasars' next game is Sunday when they travel to Whitecourt to play the last place team.

In other action on the weekend Mayerthorpe beat Parkland 3-1 while Edson dumped the Strikers by the same score.

Merv Abstreiter had a lot pulling for him. His horses Toby and Jigs with a combined weight of 2,880 pounds took first in Drayton Valley and second in Stony Plain in horse pulls over the weekend.

They pulled 2,120 over their weight on Friday in Drayton Valley to beat out Stan Roadhouse, from Edmonton. Roadhouse's Tiny and Tony pulled 1,950 pounds over their weight of 2,850 to take second. Third went to Mary Lauer's team of Angel and Kitten with a weight of 3,260 pounds. They pulled 5,200 pounds, 1,940 over their weight, to take third.

In Stony Plain Abstreiter took second with his team by pulling 5,200 pounds, 2,520 over their weight. He was beat out by Winston Curtis of Winfield. Curtis' team of Chance and Mike tipped the scales at 2,835 pounds and pulled 2,765 over their weight. Third went to Ed Lauer of Drayton Valley when his team Mike and Flash pulled 2,900 pounds over their 2,800 pound combined weight.

The next pull for the teams is in Buck Creek on June 15. Fourteen teams competed in Drayton Valley with 11 teams pulling in Stony Plain.

Edson match good test

If you're a minor soccer player, a parent of one or just an interested fan, you're wanted.

Wanted for June 23 when a "select team" from the Drayton Valley minor soccer system will take on a team from Edson.

Minor soccer president Simon Kelly is hoping this game will compare Drayton Valley's system with other programs.

"It's a good test to show parents we have been teaching the right things," Kelly explained.

He also pointed out that the Drayton Valley team will be put together in the next few weeks while the Edson squad has been together for four years.

There will also be a free barbecue after the game.

Environmental protection in the forested areas of Blackstone-Wapiabi, Job Lake, Upper Clearwater and Panther Corners will make them better places ...

New land use regulations will implement certain restrictions on recreational vehicles in these areas.

We're looking to preserve life in the wilds of Alberta and, as an Albertan, you play a role. The forested areas of Blackstone-Wapiabi, Job Lake, Upper Clearwater and Panther Corners delicately balance plant and wildlife while co-existing with man. When wildlife management and land erosion problems occur, we are concerned. We want these areas to be used, but we want them to thrive in as natural a state as possible. For this reason, we have created four forest land use zones in this area. In Alberta there are now 5,643 square kilometres under land use regulations. This represents 6.3 per cent of the total area of the Eastern Slopes.

Effective immediately, motorized vehicles such as cars, RV's, motorcycles, snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicles will not be permitted in these areas. In order to protect lake shores, horses will not be allowed to graze within 100 metres of lakes. In some areas horse feed may be required to be brought in. Hunters, campers, hikers, canoeists, skiers, trail riders — all will be welcome to experience the grandeur of the Alberta wilderness in these areas.

For more details on the regulation or zone locations contact the Rocky Clearwater forest headquarters at 845-8250 in Rocky Mountain House.

Money wanted from County of Leduc

Two-price pool policy delayed until September

Implementation of a two-price system at the Park Valley indoor swimming pool in Drayton Valley has been delayed again.

Council had planned to start a two-price system for County of Leduc users on June 1 but pushed that back to July 1.

Now, council has shelved the matter until Sept. 30.

It is the hope of Mayor Bob Mayhew that the County of Leduc comes up with the $10,000 the town has requested for the operational deficit of the pool.

Council, in setting the new date, is hoping for some positive action on a new county by Sept. 30.

"I hope they (the County of Leduc residents affected by the suggested two-price system) will put their shoulder behind the new county instead of blaming us," the mayor stated.

"It's a shame the County of Leduc won't support its people," the mayor added.

Councillor Tom McGee, who supported the mayor's motion for a new date, said he could understand the people being upset, but hoped they would get behind the county bid.

Councillors Howard Olsen, Charlie Miner and Claire Carefoot didn't like the idea of letting the County of Leduc off the hook. It was because of their stand that the time frame was included in the mayor's move to delay the matter.

The decision to delay the two-price system was not unanimous.

Councillor Bill Paniec, who also sits on the library board, didn't feel the residents of Drayton Valley and Parkland County (they gave $26,000 toward the pool deficit) should be subsidizing the County of Leduc users.

According to Paniec, the library board is currently looking at a two-price system that will affect residents in the County of Leduc who are using the library in Drayton Valley.

Mayor Mayhew has sent a letter to County of Leduc Reeve Norm Blitzer asking for payment of the $10,000. The County of Leduc has stated all along that the money would have to come from the Breton regional recreation board, who in turn say they don't have the funds.

Breton school takes overall title

Breton elementary school took the overall title in a track meet they hosted on Friday.

The Breton team finished with 423 points to beat out Winfield with 328, Alder Flats with 193 and Bluffton with 180.

The individual winners included Leah Flanders from Winfield in the Grade 4 girls group and Wayne Laczko from Breton in the Grade 4 boys group. Tara Harty from Bluffton won the Grade 5 girls category with Jim Willows and Mark Carrigan, both from Winfield, tying for the Grade 5 boys winner.

Deborah Meyer from Winfield took the Grade 6 girls group with Malvin Austin from Breton taking the Grade 6 boys group.

Participants in the Grades 1, 2 and 3 events competed against a set standard rather than each other during the track meet.

Canoe, raft race Saturday on Pembina River

Boating enthusiasts will hit the water of the Pembina River on Saturday in the first annual Pembina Rec Plex raft and canoe race.

Organizers are expecting about 20 entries in the canoe category and another 16 in the raft race.

The event, which is sponsored by the Pembina Rec Plex Funding Committee, is set up to help raise funds for the facility.

A dance in the Evansburg Legion hall will follow the race.

For the raft segment of the race a raft must have four people in it including one woman.

"Anything that floats without mechanical power" is eligible according to raft race organizer Howard Walker.

Walker, who is the deputy fire chief, added that a "fire department challenge" is being issued for other fire departments to enter.

The canoes will leave from the farm of Leo Kopekan but it hasn't been determined where the canoes will enter the river.

That depends on the river, Walker said. The racers will ride the river to the end of the Pembina Provincial Park.

Anyone interested in entering can contact Howard Walker at 727-4320 or Rex Rimmer at 727-2543.

Sports

Summer camps for Albertans

In an effort to increase sport opportunity for young Albertans, the Alberta Sport Council through Sport Outreach, in cooperation with provincial sport associations, educational institutes and municipal governments is offering residential training camps throughout the province, during July and August.

Camps are from three to five days in duration and each program includes five to six hours of sport instruction daily, supplemented with lectures, recreational activities and comfortable accommodations.

Highly qualified instructors, approved by the sport association, give individualized attention to participants. Participants should be 12 to 18 years of age, and have some prior experience in the sport; however, the prerequisite for admission is a willingness to work hard to improve their sport skills.

These camps will be held at various locations throughout Alberta in the following sports: biathlon, badminton, baseball, basketball, baton twirling, bowling, boxing, diving, equestrian, field hockey, figure skating, football, gymnastics, judo, karate, little league baseball, luge, modern rhythmic gymnastics, racquetball, ringette, rugby, sailing, ski jumping, softball, speedskating, swimming, synchro swim, table tennis, tennis, track and field, volleyball, waterskiing, weightlifting, wheelchair basketball and wrestling.

A scholarship fund has been established by the Alberta Sport Council to provide assistance for athletes to attend approved live-in sport camps.

If you have any questions or require further information about camps or scholarships, please contact Charlene Seeman, Zone 5 coordinator at 963 9158.

Frank Maddock High School

R.H. Woods scholarships now up for grabs

Nominations are now being accepted for the R.H. Woods scholarship. The scholarship fund, which has received $7,407 in donations to date and is expected to top $10,000, was established in memory of the late Richie Woods, principal at Frank Maddock High School.

The first scholarship, between $700 and $1,000 will be awarded at the FMHS graduation Sept 21 by Dot Woods.

It is the intention of the committee to award a scholarship annually off the interest of the fund.

"This will be the number one scholarship at the school, the top award," explains principal Alan Day.

To be eligible for this award a student must show academic achievement, demonstrate leadership and responsibilities in student activities and be involved in community service.

"These points illustrate Richie Woods," stated Day, a member of the scholarship committee that will make the annual selections. Other members of the committee include Jene Harris, Nevis LaBranch, Joy Harrison and Dot Woods.

Only Frank Maddock High School Grade 12 graduates are eligible for the R.W. Woods scholarship. Funds will be for post-secondary training or schooling. There is a deferment of one year, in case the student wants to work before going on in the education field. And the scholarship funds are payable upon the student's attendance at the institution of their choice.

Day urges community nominations.

"A nomination from the community, where a student may be doing a community service, which might be unknown to the selection committee, would be very helpful," Day stated.

Day encourages interested people to submit their nominations quickly as the first scholarship will be awarded in four months.

Nominations can be sent to Frank Maddock High School, Box 1109, Drayton Valley, AB, T0E 0M0.

Donations to the R.H. Woods scholarship can be sent or left at the Treasury Branch in Drayton Valley.

Day is aware of a couple more large donations coming for the scholarship fund and expects several of the former FMHS students returning for their 25th reunion at the end of the month to make a contribution.

Breton Historical Society restore cemetery

By Shelli Carson
695-2290

Thanks to the hard work and dedication of the members of the Breton and District Historical Society much of the Keystone Cemetery has been restored.

On June 1 the formal unveiling of the cairn was held. Present were Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps, Alberta Culture representative Brian Miller, County of Leduc Division & Councillor Gene Begg, and Breton Mayor Colleen Lee, as well as guests and members.

The following history was provided by Mark Hooks.

Keystone Cemetery was founded in 1910 by the black pioneers who had settled in the Keystone area.

The land for the cemetery was donated by Harry Allen, as he was the first settler to lose a loved one. Although those buried here are predominately black there are a few whites buried here as well.

As no official records were kept, the society has relied on information passed on from friends and relatives of these families for the names which are inscribed on the cairn.

Charlie King was the caretaker of the cemetery for many years, but as the black families left the area it became harder to take care of it. Reverend Gerald Hutchinson, the United Church minister for this area for many years, was instrumental in helping with the restoration of the cemetery. At his suggestion the east end of the cemetery has been left in its natural state as it contains many of the native trees and plants known to this area.

At the time the cairn was erected, a time capsule was placed under the concrete. The capsule, which is to be opened 100 years from now, contains a Ladder of Time book, a Leduc Representative and a Canadian $1 bill.

The ceremony was opened by chairperson Gwen Hooks who introduced the guest speakers. Mayor Colleen Lee delivered a welcome and congratulated the society "on a job well done."

County Councillor Gene Begg stressed the importance of honoring our early pioneers and culture representative Brian Miller mentioned the importance "of marking our own milestones."

After a musical selection by the Breton community band, the cairn was unveiled by MLA Shirley Cripps who felt "really privileged to be asked to take part in the ceremony."

The cairn is inscribed as follows:

Keystone Cemetery 1910 - 1983
Many black pioneers came to Alberta from the U.S.A. in the early 1900s. They founded Good Hope Baptist Mission and Keystone Cemetery. We dedicate this cairn to them.

Those buried here are named below. Our apologies for those we have missed:

Elsie Brisco, Drucilla Brisco, Harry Allen, Mary Proctor, Dorothy Proctor, John Burton Sr, John Burton Jr, Irwin Ford, Prince Ford, C. Jeffries, Larke Ford, Zona Ford, Alas Ross, Ernie Ross, Abe Banner, Jenny Banner, Thomas Shaw, Gus Jones, Ann Tolson, Molly Hayes, Matilda King, Charles King, Emma King.

Group Involvement ImportantSocial Service starts volunteer program

A University of Alberta student is in Drayton Valley to set up a volunteer program with Social Services which she hopes stays on after she leaves town.

Crystal Ostertag, a 20-year-old student going into her third year of Education with a major in biology at the University of Alberta, has been hired to be the Volunteer Services Coordinator for the Drayton Valley, Evansburg area.

Her work centres around the home care program, which has elderly or disabled persons stay at home rather than be committed to an institution.

Getting volunteers to help with friendly visiting, handi-man services, home help, and home-making services will be her responsibility, she said.

"If they (volunteers) could be giving one day a week, for two or three hours a day," it would be of much help to the clients in town.

There are about eight clients who she has on a priority list for getting volunteers, Ostertag commented. In Drayton Valley, there are about 45 clients in Home Care project, "one of the highest numbers" in the Alberta West Central Health Unit's area, she said.

She explained she is trying to get more group involvement, the churches seeming to be the most interested, she mentioned.

Anyone who wants to volunteer time to the project pretty well can, and there is quite a demand for volunteers right now, she said.

"However many (volunteers) we get, we can fill with clients," according to Ostertag.

People who want these services are interviewed by the home care nurse for eligibility, and Ostertag will then match volunteers to a compatible client, she explained. She added a person requesting a certain client will be matched up that way.

Experience is an important part of volunteer work, she said. Employers are starting to take that experience more seriously these days.

"I keep track of hours and I keep track of performance and can be used as a reference," she commented.

Although she does not discount the pleasure doing volunteer work can bring either.

Currently, she spends much of her time on the telephone getting in touch of people who might like to be involved in the project.

"The telephone is the logo for the program because of the amount of phoning we do," she commented.

Ostertag can be reached at the health unit office in the provincial building in Drayton Valley. Her number is 542-4415.

Work starts

Even as students prepare for the end of classes, staff at Frank Maddock High School have started the massive job of organizing for next year.

They are "fighting with organization for next year," said Jim Wolff.

He said the staff has begun assessing next year's enrollment, working up a timetable, assigning classrooms, and predicting needs.

"It amounts to a massive chess game," Wolff remarked.

Breton Hospital

New X-ray machine

Four-year-old Pamela Klucny of Winfield was the first one to try it.

She had the honor of being the first one X-rayed on the newest piece of equipment at the Breton Hospital.

This new X-ray machine, from Toshiba, took its first picture in the Breton Hospital June 6 of Pamela's wrist.

It replaces the old X-ray machine that had been in the hospital since it was built in 1963.

Rita Thompson, the X-ray technician said the machine arrived on March 29 but it took until now to get it installed.

Thompson said the machine was "more modern" and they could do "a lot more X-rays" with it.

The $150,000 machine also has anatomical programming. Thompson says this means it has a little computer inside which you can program. Then all the technicians have to do is hit a button and the machine takes an X-ray of a certain part of the body.

"It's definitely the most modern equipment," Thompson added.

Chamber speaker attacks budget

The federal budget was attacked during last week's Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting.

Dan Horgan, president of the Canadian Organization of Small Business who was the chamber's guest speaker, spent most of his 25-minute presentation attacking the budget.

About 60 people attended the dinner meeting at the Westwinds which also heard a report from Hire-A-Student coordinator Heather Parker and several chamber directors.

Chamber tourist chairman Bruce Clemmer gave an update report on his committee's work. They are busy preparing for a July 2 visit by 44 paddlers. The group also introduced Riggy and some new Riggy buttons. A four-color place mat map is expected to be available this week.

Those in attendance also heard that only two booths are left for the September trade fair. Organizers are overwhelmed that 92 booths have been booked.

Response has been good according to the Hire-A-Student coordinator. Parker hopes to pass last year's figures of 108 short-term and 48 full-term jobs.

If any employers in the Drayton Valley area need summer help, call the Hire-A-Student office at 542-7661.

Lodge finds home

The Masonic Lodge in Drayton Valley has found a new home.

Bob Barker and John MacKenzie appeared before town council last Thursday, at which time councillors okayed a five-year lease on a lot north of the old Amoco site.

But before the lodge can proceed with basement plans and moving the old Amoco Safety Hall onto the foundation, the lease has to be published. The lease includes a yearly payment of $500.

It is the intention of the lodge to use the basement of the new building for their meetings and rent out the upstairs to local groups. According to Barker, the lodge won't be out to make a lot of money with their rentals, just enough to cover utilities.

When the lodge originally approached council about the lot, their request was put on hold as the lot is in a municipal reserve. But a check with Municipal Affairs stated they had nothing against the sale or lease of the property.

The lodge is in a bit of a hurry as they have to vacate the Scout Hall and move the Amoco Safety Hall by the end of the month.

Evansburg history

No end to editing of two-volume Foley Trail book

Hazel Fausak

It seems like an editor's job is never done. Hazel Fausak of Evansburg will no doubt testify to that.

Fausak is editor of the two-volume Foley Trail, which is a history book featuring Evansburg, Entwistle and the surrounding school district.

The history book was a project of the Pembina-Lobstick Historical Society.

Months of hard work were rewarded last June when 2,000 copies of the hardcover book were printed. Of that number, 1,400 have been sold.

People

Fausak, who has spent three years working on the 1,664-page history book that also includes 1,600 pictures, had copies of the book on sale at the recent Evansburg Trade Fair.

It seems that Fausak's work won't be done until the last copy is sold.

Anyone who would like a copy of the Foley

Trail is asked to call Hazel Fausak at 727-2211. Or, Margaret Young at 727-2225; Jack Read at 727-3580; Gladys Schroder at 727-2179 or Mary Cumming at 727-3517.

A lot of hard work by many people has gone into this history book and it would only be fitting to see all 2,000 copies sold.

Beehive skinning demo

The Beehive Workshop in Drayton Valley was the scene of a demonstration in hide skinning recently.

Ken Wheeler, who was a full time trapper, and his wife Irene showed the staff at the Beehive how an animal is skinned and how the skin is stretched. The demonstration was brought in to show the people there how stretchers, which they are making, will be used.

The workshop was making about 200 stretchers for Stuker Furs in Edmonton. The stretchers ranged in size from those for coyotes down to some for squirrels.

Once Wheeler pulled the hide off a carcass, he put the skin on a stretcher and scraped off the fat with a bone from a moose leg. Wheeler has been in Drayton Valley for about two years now. Retired from trapping, he is currently designing a new type of trap.

Three rangers at Lodgepole

Trees are main responsibility for forest rangers

The weather can be their best friend or their worst enemy.

But for the 268 forest rangers in Alberta their prime concern is taking care of the trees that cover over two-thirds of Alberta's land.

Three of these rangers, Don Harrison, Dan Walton and Dollard O'Connor, man the Lodgepole station.

Harrison, the head ranger, says their area covers from the North Saskatchewan River on the eastern side to the Brazeau River on the south, the Pembina River to the north and an imaginary line west of the Elk River campground.

As of April 1 next year their responsibilities will increase when the boundary of their district is moved farther south to accommodate the Brazeau campground. This area is presently administered out of Rocky Mountain House.

The area they cover now is part of the Rocky-Clearwater Forest, one of 10 forests in Alberta. They are responsible for one of the smallest of the 43 districts in the province but that doesn't mean they have less to do.

Harrison points out that most of their time is spent inspecting well sites or seismic lines to see if there is any environmental damage. Last year they inspected 102 well sites.

But they can share part of their workload in the summer with the temporary staff that joins them at the station.

During the summer an "initial attack crew" consisting of three men and a cook join the rangers. But more assistance is not far away.

When the weather dictates a fire hazard Harrison sends a request to the Rocky station for what he calls "man-up crews."

These eight-men crews come and camp at the station in case of a forest fire. Their job is "exclusively fire fighting" and they are trained in the proper techniques to battle blazes.

Each member of this man-up crew has gone through a one-week training course that teaches them a variety of skills. Included in the course is instruction on how to set up camps, the behavior of fire, care of equipment, aircraft safety, fire line construction, fire crew organization and of course fire fighting tactics.

So far this year two man-up crews have been called into the Lodgepole station, both during the dry weather that plagued the region in mid-May. A squad of university students and a crew of native were on hand to combat any fires in what Harrison said was an "unusual spring."

Harrison looking over pins marking local well sites.

Harrison said this year the fire hazard started in the first part of May compared to last year when the first hazard was in July.

The crew was called in the early morning hours of May 15 to fight a fire that started the night before and eventually burned 12 acres. The crew stayed on because of the hazard and were called into action again on May 18 to stop a fire that consumed five acres of timber.

But after the first rain came in May the crews packed up and headed home. Harrison said they were pleased with the rain because "it took a lot of pressure off."

But despite the early fire hazard this year their record remains impressive. The largest fire since Harrison and the two other rangers came to Lodgepole about two years ago was the May 14th fire that burned 12 acres.

Before that Harrison said the largest was in 1968 when a fire burned from Lodgepole to Drayton Valley. At that time there was only one ranger at Lodgepole.

Two rangers were put there after 1968 and then in response to the boom in the area a third ranger was added in 1976.

Unfortunately the increase in staff has been paralleled by an increase in fires over the last few years.

Last year the district had 15 forest fires, tripling the number they had the year before that. But this increase is attributed to weather conditions rather than people.

"People out here are very fire conscious," Harrison points out, "we get good cooperation from the local people."

Because of this awareness Harrison is hoping the trend of increasing numbers of fires will reverse.

But worrying about fires is not the only thing a ranger must do.

Other things that the rangers do include timber management which could mean anything from inspecting timber operations to determining wood volumes of forests, also reforestation projects and land use inspection, the biggest part for the Lodgepole rangers.

A typical day is hard to describe says Harrison.

They start at about 8:15 a.m. and call into Rocky to tell them where there are going to be for the day. They then could do anything from inspecting well sites to forest reclamation.

"It varies so much, that is what's so good about the job," Harrison adds in saying that things are completely different from day to day.

But one thing that doesn't change from day to day is the constant contact with the lookout tower.

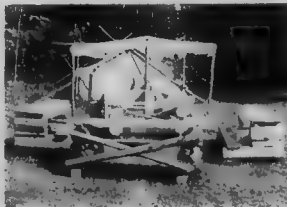

The station is in contact with the tower by both radio and phone, Harrison explains. The person in the tower is "on site" 24 hours a day during the six-month period they are there. In a low hazard situation they go up into the tower three times a day but during a high risk time they are up in the tower throughout the daylight hours.

It is not all work at the Lodgepole station though.

The rangers have got a make-shift golf course, volleyball court and table tennis for recreational purposes.

These recreational facilities help keep the morale up Harrison points out.

"It gives us something to release all the stress."

Don and Spud Cherrington drove to Cold Lake to attend their granddaughter's graduation. Roxanne Redlinger is now going to join the workforce. The slow pitch ball tournament at the hall and grounds was a success despite the rain. A dance was held on Saturday evening.

Lloyd and Lil Bonwick of Edmonton were out to visit at the Tufty residences last weekend.

A ladies meeting was held May 27 with nine members present. A discussion was held on having a bazaar and bake sale table at the annual community picnic June 15. A pancake breakfast will start the day with ball games, races, bingo, etc. to follow later with a dance in the evening.

A grass-cutting bee was held May 29 at the Brightwood Cemetery. Seven or eight lawnmowers made short work of the grass while the ladies clipped around the headstones with hand clippers.

Few people pay attention beyond the headlines

By Cecil B. Dawkins

On average, most people only pay real attention to those events which personally affect them. The media, swamped with the mass of information that pours in day after day, selects today what will inevitably be wiped from memory by tomorrow's upcoming events. We rarely have time to stop and ponder what lies behind the headlines.

As a recent example we may recall that the B.C. government fired the Vancouver School Board and installed a single appointed trustee of their own choosing in place of the board.

Why? The board had dared to pass a budget that was in excess of government guidelines. Later it was noticeable that other boards complied with the guidelines, at the same time protesting the inability of such budgets to meet the real needs of the educational system. Even the newly appointed government trustee of Vancouver admitted that the new budget was inadequate to the need.

All this sharply raises the question of how decisions get made and power exercised. School trustees are elected by the public, but who is in charge?

In Alberta the issues are not so clearly seen.

yet they do exist. Our own Minister of Education is well known for his addiction to trial balloons and frequent consultation.

Yet even he, upon occasion, has fired an elected school board and has recently announced his decision to appoint a council on Alberta Teaching Standards as a move to help ensure teacher competency in the classroom: a move which was made despite the opposition of the Alberta Teachers Association. Given reason he can play rough, and that is true of most governments with large majorities.

Looking at our local scene we see a large variety of matters requiring debate and decision. Will there be a new county based on Drayton Valley? Would such a move also imply the creation of a new school authority for the jurisdiction? Who will decide? What changes will be introduced by the revision of the County Act? And on a wider basis, how will proposals for change embodied in the Secondary School Review affect our children's future and their chances of fitting in effectively to local employment needs? These are all complex matters. How will they be decided and by whom?

In a democratic society such issues must give rise to community debate. Interest and pressure groups will form. But eventually someone somewhere has to make the final decisions. In most matters of consequence it rests with the provincial government, and through them with the legislature. The decisions finally taken may or may not reflect the public input. Government is, after all, elected to govern, and that may mean that its decisions may not always be popular in the short run.

That however does not mean that large decisions can simply be made by ministerial fiat as is reputed to have happened under Premier Davies in dealing with the Catholic School funding issue in Ontario.

Such things invite serious trouble and may suggest that citizen input is of no value. A healthy democracy needs not only widespread participation and input, but also, some evidence that it is taken seriously. Ministers no doubt must upon occasion make unpopular decisions and can be respected for it. Wisely done, the proper exercise of power becomes a reflection of character. Where this is not the case, the voters have an uncanny knack of putting the offenders out of office.

The Alberta Hunter horse show will be held at the Western Exposition grounds in Red Deer, Saturday and Sunday. Show times both days are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Stock contractor Reg Kesler retired his great bareback horse "Three Bars" during ceremonies at Taber. The remarkable 25-year-old brown mare — who has also foaled some great ones — has been to every Canadian Finals.

Twice named top bareback horse at the National Finals, the veteran of 19 years in the rodeo arena, strangely, never received a citation in Canada, yet every cowboy spoke reverently of her. As the cowboys would put it: "She was one to make your palms sweat."

Cliff Williamson is warming up again.

The Madden calf roper was a swift eight seconds flat to win the event at the Olds Pro West Days rodeo.

The payoff was $791 — almost $100 per second of work — and shot him up into fifth in the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association seasonal standings.

The early-season leader in the world standings, Williamson has fallen on soft times since returning home from the U.S. winter indoor circuit in early March.

per category. The deadline is Aug. 1. Entry forms and more information are available from Bev Siegel (388-3928) or Joyce Hayduk (388-3868).

Bill and Audrey Donald, Ruby Quinn and Henry and Rhoda Larsson were out to the lake for the long weekend; also Bob and Helen Armstrong were at their cabin.

Madeleine Prefontaine from Black Diamond was out for the graduation of her grandson Glen Lowe May 31.

Rudy and Vera Brus drove Doug to Calgary on his way to work, then continued on to High River for a visit with Marie and Arnold Jones.

Ruby Woods travelled to Enderby, B.C. to visit Helen (Eckland) Eadie, whose husband Jim passed away recently. Helen was formerly from the Brightview area. Ruby also saw Fred and Marion Doyle and Barbara Damant.

He failed to find the pay window in Canada until Cloverdale, B.C., where the husky, 24-year-old cowboy won $500 in the preliminary round.

His run at Olds is a clear signal that he's back on track.

As well, after travelling together through the first three months of the year, Williamson will again be hooking up with fellow Canadian roper, Larry Robinson of Innisfail.

Robinson has taken the world lead away from Williamson since they returned north, but Cliff still holds down second spot. Robinson has close to $29,000 won for the world and Williamson is around the $25,000-plus level.

"That one was a little confidence builder," said Williamson after his Olds run. "I could use another eight like that at one of those big rodeos."

Elementary B

Skip-a-thon raises $12,000

The Elementary B school in Drayton Valley has organizers from the Alberta Heart Foundation grinning and shaking their heads.

Recently, the school had a skip-a-thon which raised a total of $12,424.70. This was more than twice the national average for donations per student.

The 177 students who participated were divided into teams of six and each team spent three hours trading off as they skipped.

Denise Ryan, spokesman for the Foundation from Edmonton, said, "We're very impressed, needless to say."

She explained the national average is about $28 per student, the average for Alberta is $40 per student, and Drayton Valley managed to raise an average of $70 per student.

"If we could only clone Drayton Valley," commented Ryan.

Town looking to give grant to Chamber

If the money can be found, the town plans to give the Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce a $4,000 grant.

Mayor Bob Mayhew pushed for the endorsement of the grant stating, "The chamber is like the right arm of council. What they do benefits the community."

Both Councillor Howard Olsen and Charlie Miner were concerned where the money would come from.

According to Councillor Tom McGee, the $4,000 grant would be used for operations.

TransAlta request to continue rate level denied

In a decision released recently the Alberta Public Utilities Board (PUB) denied an application by TransAlta Utilities to continue current rate levels.

A four-month five per cent revenue rider in place to cover the remainder of the company's 1984 revenue requirement expired May 31, 1985. TransAlta's interim rate application had requested that the rider be extended for the rest of the year. This would have allowed partial recovery of the company's forecast increased costs for 1985.

According to the decision, "the board is not persuaded that denial of the application, at this time, will adversely affect the operation of the company or its relations with the investment community."

A hearing date in September has been set for the PUB to review and determine TransAlta's estimated revenue requirement for 1985. The board is confident that a decision on the revenue requirement will be issued in sufficient time to allow TransAlta to make a further interim application for new rates, perhaps in the form of another revenue rider, to be in place before the end of 1985.

In the meantime, TransAlta's customers will experience a five per cent rate reduction as of June 1, as a result of the expiry of the revenue rider.

a guide —
a follower,

one man with so many opinions and answers,
a lover of the truth.

a man of compassion and gentleness;
a boisterous man, yet a sincere one —

a man of intense thought and meditation.
a man of business - a man with simple tastes.

White knights could materialize

By Joanne Benger

Today and tomorrow the moon is in the hot, dry, masculine fire sign of Aries as well in fourth quarter.

Wear scarlet to get in tune with the moon. Be careful not to do things which will cause you to injure your face or your head, for they are especially vulnerable at this time.

It is a good time for drying herbs or making fruit leather.

Watch your tan or you could dry your skin out as well.

Aries is the sign under which white knights materialize, so watch for yours.

June 14-16 the moon will be in the semi-fruitful earth sign of Taurus.

It is a stolid sign under which we all appear well-rooted. Move perennial roots and they should take to their new spot.

On the personal side this is one of the most stubborn signs. It is therefore not a good idea to suggest changes no matter how promising they may be.

Everyone seems preoccupied with accumulating and retaining material goods.

Fourth quarter is, however, also a time when old patterns and ideas break down to make way for new ones.

Some people are depressed because their idea or plan was such a failure. Not to worry. A new cycle is about to begin. There are 13 lunar cycles a year and each is a chance for a fresh start.

June 17-18 New Moon will occur and we get the chance to begin our new cycle. Make concrete plans now, putting down what you hope to accomplish in the next four weeks.

Ideas are vague, but will clear up with time. Form partnerships and sign contracts.

Whose lucky week is it?

Aquarius is our lucky sign with lucky birthdays this week falling between Feb. 15 and 19.

The lucky number to remember is three and if you speculate with a partner, choose one born under the air or fire sign — Aquarius, Aries, Gemini, Leo, Libra, or Sagittarius.

Important days this week

June 16, 1882 the hailstone weighing 1½ pounds fell at Dubuque, Iowa.

Who says things are getting worse?

Dome's private campground

Sulpetro employees go to Ashland Dam camp

The Sulpetro employees and families enjoyed a weekend of camping at the Ashland Dam (north and east of Breton) which is a private campground owned by Dome.

The families enjoyed fishing, games, socializing and a steak supper Saturday evening. This "ampout" replaces their annual Christmas party and the children received gifts.

The Engbloms had a family reunion at the J.L. and Ivy Seely ranch June 1 with about 25 members present. Their last reunion was in 1980. Here from Vancouver was Ivy's brother Vernon, who is spending several weeks visiting family in Alberta; his sister Ruth McNeil and Doris Engblom, also from Vancouver; brother Walter and Ruby Engblom from Wetaskiwin and her sister Mary Peterson and family from Edmonton and some cousins.

The brothers and sisters and spouses, as well as J.L. and Ivy attended the "oldtimers" reunion dance at Alder Flats and the reunion at Buck Lake on Sunday.

The Alder Flats and Buck Lake brownies attended the 75th celebration rally at Thorsby June 1. There were about 375 brownies and guides attending from various areas and participated in a "un day" - decorating cupcakes, making crafts, blowing up balloons which were released in the evening and playing parachute games. They were later treated to a supper of hotdogs, chips and pop, and a sing-song before returning home.

Congratulations to John and Noreen Anderson on the birth of their son Carl at the Drayton Valley hospital May 30.

Tamie Sargent of Lacombe was home for the race meet, barbecue and dance.

Alder Flats News

by Bernice Johnson

The races and parade had to be cancelled Saturday due to the rain, but the races were run off Sunday and I hope to have the results in the next edition.

The kindergarten enjoyed two field trips to end their year.

They visited Sleepy Valley Farm May 16 and had a sports day at Ziener Park May 21.

The 1984-85 kindergarten year ended May 23. The graduation took place at the Alder Flats Community Centre that evening with an excellent turn out. After the potluck supper each of the two classes performed songs and presentations were made. Each student was presented with a kindergarten diploma.

Shirley Shanks, the kindergarten teacher for the past 10 years has decided to stop teaching. Her two teaching aides, Bev Maclean and Sylvia Stuart presented her with flowers. Several students from her first kindergarten class of 10 years ago presented her with a golf cart and flowers in appreciation.

Shanks presented flowers to her two aides and kindergarten coordinator Debbie Schwengler in appreciation of their help and on behalf of the community.

Thanks also to Carol Clemmer for volunteering to take individual and group graduation pictures of the kindergarten May 22.

I would also like to thank Linda McKinnon for supplying me with all the kindergarten news for the past year.

Ted and Maryann Maciborski enjoyed a trip in their motorhome to Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper.

Agnes Schuauerte and Karen Bartak and Brian, Susan and Dena Schuauerte motored to Fort McMurray to the home of Vine and Louise Schuauerte at the end of May to attend a surprise supper party for Wayne Schuauerte, who is just completing upgrading his Grade 12. He will be attending SAT in Calgary this fall to take air conditioning and refrigeration.

Steve Stefura, Marion Hoflin and Bernice Johnson attended the funeral of Joe Stefura at Round Hill and visited at the home of Bill and Ellie Stefura after the funeral.

Town council

No charge for promo material

Town council has decided to give away their promotional material.

The amount of material to be given away will be left to the discretion of the administration.

Prior to last Thursday's council meeting, the town had talked about charging $1 for their new brochure.

In making the motion Councillor Tom McGee said, "I don't think we can sell these brochures. I feel administration can handle any request."

Councillor Claire Carefoot stated, "I hate to see us charge for them. Let's just get them out."

Mayor Bob Mayhew urged for some sort of direction so administration knew what to do. He also suggested that the Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce wanted some direction as they were concerned over possible waste. Veterans councillor Charlie Miner stated, "I disagree with charging."

ing or selling the promotional material. I believe the administration is capable of handling."

Beehive Workshop gets tax break

The Drayton Valley Association for the Developmentally Handicapped received a tax break from the town last week.

Council okayed a grant for $3,517.07, equal to the taxes on the Beehive Workshop property.

However, a second request for a grant of $476.82 covering the taxes on a group home was denied.

Council was told that a group home, located in the county, was exempt from taxes. However, it was pointed out that the difference between the two group homes was a frontage tax.

Wild oat spray depends on extent and cost

Does it pay to spray wild oats? The answer is a definite "yes - sometimes". The value of spraying depends on the actual cost of the chemical and on the number of wild oats in your fields.

Let's try an example with a spray that costs $10/acre. To be worthwhile it should save us more than $10/acre in crop losses. If we had 25 wild oat plants per square yard, and that is not a great number, we could expect about $18 in extra yield per acre of barley if we sprayed.

In another example, if we had 16 wild oat plants per acre we would get an extra yield of $7.36. This is less than the $10/acre the spraying is costing us. If it were a "one shot" weed problem we would go for it. Wild oats can be very persistent and one shot won't do it. We won't spray.

How do you know these calculations? Well, the process is really simple if you know the competition index.

First, count the number of seeding wild oats in a square yard in your field. Multiply this number by 1.15 and take to the square root of the result. Multiply this number by the competition index of your crop. For barley this is 2.3, use 3.39 for wheat, 6.01 for flax and 9.22 for Canola. That will give you the present yield loss in your crop.

Here's another example:

The number of wild oats is 40 per square yard. 40 x 1.15 equals 46 and the square root of 46 is 6.8. Now, 6.8 x 3.39 will give a 23 per cent yield reduction in wheat. I was expecting 30 bushels per acre so 30 x 23 divided by 100 means I'll lose seven

The D.A. Column

by Doug Walkey
542-5368

bushels per acre, plus dockage.

Multiply seven bushels per acre by $3.50 and your lost value is $24.50. Spraying for $10 per acre looks cheap by comparison!

Now let's look at some recommendation. These are general recommendations, so if you have specific questions check with someone in the know.

It's best to work with examples, so let's start with a typical Drayton Valley problem. Take Johnson Barley, infested with wild oats and hemp cattle, with some thistle on the side for good measure.

There are two main types of weed present, broad leaf and wild oats, so two different chemicals are needed. Regulations on tank mixes are strict so we really have only two choices: Average 200C -Glean mix or Hoe-grass 284-Glean mix.

I would favor the Hoe-grass-Glean mix myself because of a little broader grassy weed control and a slightly lower cost. The cost, by the way, is $23.23 an acre (suggested retail). So I hope you shop around for chemicals!

Glean has some restrictions on the type of crop to be grown in future years, so be sure before you spray.

A typical oat crop would have chickweed, hemp nettle and stinkweed. This offers us a lot of chemical choices. The two best in my book are Blagat at $6.23 per acre or a tank of Brominal M and MCPA (Ester 500) at $6.72 per acre. Again you should best these prices if you shop around.

We have an excellent publication called the Guide to Crop Protection in Alberta. It lists the vast majority of chemicals available including fungicides and pesticides. This has been reprinted so if you have the old dark blue copy be sure to get the new one.

Katie Brighty Colley passes away at 102

By LeOpal Larsson

Katie Brighty Colley passed away March 9 at the age of 102 years in Vancouver.

She emigrated from England in the late 1890s and was one of the first nurses to be trained at the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton.

She served as public health nurse in many communities and was instrumental in opening the nursing stations at Yeoford and Pendryl in the summer of 1923.

After completing graduate studies at Columbia University she became superintendent of public health nurses for 14 years.

Several people in our community still remember her dedicated service.

John and Jean Bartman and Stacey Hendricks went to Wild Horse Lake, near Hinton, on a fishing trip.

Jean said it rained nearly every day but they did catch some fish. The old timers' reunion was again a huge success with a capacity crowd attending. We will try to have a list of those who signed the guest book as soon as possible.

Tucker quarter to be developed

In an effort to attract business to Drayton Valley the town plans to develop the Tucker quarter.

Council decided last Thursday to proceed with the installation of water and sewer and gravel some roads.

The southwest area of the quarter will be developed first.

Dick Nobbs, special projects coordinator hired by the town, has approached some prospects and the property will be listed with real estate firms.

The Junior Miss Pageant likes to think it's different

By Constance Pace

There are so many televised beauty contests that it's sometimes hard to remember which contestant won which contest. But America's Junior Miss Competition claims it's different — because it's more interested in character than looks. The final of the competition, hosted by Bruce Jenner and Mary Frann, will air June 21 on CBS.

Contestants are asked to compete in academic, physical fitness and talent categories. The talent submas on of 1984's winner, 19-year-old Amber Kvanli, was a song-and-dance routine done to "The Varsity Drag." But she explains, "Before I did that I had never danced before in my life!" One of the things Junior Miss is proudest of is that we are judged not by what we do but how we do it. The judges are really looking for how you handle yourself. It's not how you handle yourself at your best but how you handle yourself at your worst.

Amber was brought up in the small town of Willmar, Minn., and entered the competition after she heard about it over her high-school public-address system. "I didn't even know there were competitions on the state or nation level. I entered it for the scholarship and because I've always liked community service." She won a $25,000 scholarship, which she's currently using as a pre-med student at Minnesota's St. Olaf College.

Due to her heavy school workload she's had a hectic time making personal appearances. "It's a scholarship competition, so it would look kind of tacky to take me out of school to travel," she giggles. "The best thing I've learned this year is how to manage my time."

Amber is looking forward to this year's competition, and to again seeing Jenner, with whom she became friendly when he hosted last year's competition. She met Miss Frann recently. "She was a Junior Miss once," says Miss Kvanli, "and we discovered we had the same time management problems. She's gorgeous!"
